Equality Diversity Inclusion Policy	1.0	July 2026	July 2027

1 | Policy Statement

Overleaf Publishers Ltd is committed to providing equal access to vocational training for all learners, regardless of age, disability, gender reassignment, marriage and civil partnership status, pregnancy and maternity, race, religion or belief, sex, or sexual orientation — the nine protected characteristics defined under the Equality Act 2010.

The company recognises that equality is not simply a matter of treating everyone the same; it requires us to understand and appropriately respond to the different needs, experiences, and circumstances of our learners and stakeholders. We are committed to active inclusion — designing training that is accessible, relevant, and fair for all.

2 | Legal Framework

- Equality Act 2010 — prohibiting discrimination, harassment, and victimisation
- Human Rights Act 1998 — protecting fundamental rights and freedoms
- Disability Discrimination Act 1995 (as superseded by the Equality Act 2010)
- Special Educational Needs and Disabilities (SEND) framework
- Public Sector Equality Duty (where applicable)
- IIRSM Non-Discrimination Requirements for Approved Providers
- RoSPA Equality and Diversity Standards for Qualification Providers

3 | Scope

This policy applies to all learners, prospective learners, employees, contractors, authors, assessors, and any other individual engaged with Overleaf Publishers Ltd and the chainsawcourses.com platform. It covers all aspects of training delivery, assessment, certification, and business operations.

4 | Commitments

4.1 Learner Access

- The platform is designed to WCAG 2.1 AA accessibility standards, ensuring compatibility with screen readers and assistive technologies
- Course content is presented in plain, clear English and at an appropriate reading level for the target learner group
- Reasonable adjustments are available for learners with disabilities or additional needs — see Reasonable Adjustments Policy
- Activation codes are available at a single accessible price point; hardship considerations handled by direct contact
- No learner will be excluded from training on the basis of any protected characteristic

4.2 Content & Assessment

- Training materials present chainsaw safety in a professional, inclusive manner free from stereotyping or discriminatory language
- Assessment questions are reviewed to ensure they are free from cultural bias, unnecessary jargon, or language that disadvantages particular groups
- Images, scenarios, and examples used in training reflect the diversity of the professional arboricultural and forestry workforce
- Photosensitivity considerations: no rapidly flashing content is used in any training video or platform feature

4.3 Complaints of Discrimination

- Any learner who believes they have been discriminated against on the basis of a protected characteristic may raise a formal complaint under the Complaints Procedure
- All such complaints will be treated with the utmost seriousness and investigated impartially
- Findings will be reported within 20 working days and appropriate remedial action taken
- Persistent or serious instances of discrimination may be referred to the Equality and Human Rights Commission

5 | Disability & Reasonable Adjustments

Overleaf Publishers Ltd recognises its duty under the Equality Act 2010 to make reasonable adjustments for learners with disabilities. We are committed to ensuring that no learner is placed at a substantial disadvantage compared to learners without a disability. Full details of the adjustments available and how to request them are set out in the Reasonable Adjustments Policy.

6 | Monitoring & Review

Overleaf Publishers Ltd will monitor equality data annually, including learner feedback related to accessibility and inclusivity, complaints related to discrimination, and the uptake of reasonable adjustments. Findings will inform the annual policy review and any necessary improvements to course design, platform accessibility, or business practices.

7 | Responsibility

The Managing Director (David J Daniel) is responsible for implementing, monitoring, and reviewing this policy. All contractors and content contributors are required to adhere to the principles of this policy in their work for Overleaf Publishers Ltd.
